Славимо Ирску у Београду Celebrating Ireland in Belgrade

In March of each year, RTÉ (Irish National Broadcaster) provides an excellent roundup of the major events held throughout the world to celebrate Ireland's National Day – St. Patrick's Day, March 17th.

This year a St. Patrick's Belgrade Irish Festival will be held on Saturday, 21st March 2020 at Parabrod, Belgrade, Serbia, commencing at 14.00hrs and one of the main speakers at the event will be Francis M. O'Donnell who donated a copy of his magnum to the Society's Archive & Research Centre.

Francis M. O'Donnell is probably better known in Belgrade as the former United Nations official who arrived within days of the regime change of 5th October 2000, with a mandate to lead efforts to restore collaboration between the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia & Montenegro) and the international community after years of war and sanctions.

At one of the events during the festival Francis M. O'Donnell will deliver a talk on 'The O'Donnells of Tyrconnell - A Hidden Legacy, published by Academica Press LLC, Washington. D.C. 2019 [ISBN: 978-1-68053-474-0: H/bk: 715pp] in which he explores the fascinating history of his forbearers in a comprehensive study.

The Elizabethan conquest of Ireland in the early 1600s extinguished the rule of the O'Donnells of Tyrconnell (Tír Chonaill), leading to the plantation of Ulster. This is the first account of lost branches of their dynasty, descending from a largely forgotten scion, Donal Oge O'Donnell, only child of Sir Donal O'Donnell who was the eldest son and usurped heir of Sir Hugh Dubh Mac Manus, 23rd O'Donnell, King and Lord of Tyrconnell. This was an area roughly covering modern Co. Donegal and, at times, parts of the adjacent counties in the northwest of Ireland.

Hugh Dubh ruled from 1567 to 1592 and married twice. His children by his first wife, Nuala, a daughter of O'Neill, were eclipsed by the second, Maria or Iníon Dubh, née MacDonnell, who killed Sir Donal at Derrylaghan in 1590, thwarting his succession in favour of her own eldest son, Red Hugh, then in English captivity.

Hugh Dubh died in 1600, and by 1601 both Red Hugh, who had escaped Dublin Castle, and his brothers Rory and Cathbharr and their nephew Donal Oge were engaged in the endgame of the Nine Years War. En route to Kinsale, Donal Oge undertook a side-expedition to Ardfert, spending several years in alliance with FitzMaurice, Lord of Kerry. Rory succeeded Red Hugh and became the first Earl of Tyrconnell in 1604, but they and many others were exiled to the Continent in 1607 in the Flight of the Earls. Donal Oge then joined Spanish forces in Flanders, where he died in 1620.

Hugh Dubh and his family were the last undisputed dynasts to rule effectively. Stripped of power, the nominal local headship of the clan reverted later to the genealogically senior line of his brother Calbhach, some whose descendants won fame and fortune on the Continent as dukes in Spain and counts in Austria.

History thus far obscured the survival of an older line of O'Donnell counts in France, who were known there as Chief of the Name and of the Arms. They became extinct in 1879, but their ostensible next-of-kin in Ardfert, trace origins in common back to a grandson of Donal Oge O'Donnell. His descendants, rebels in Ireland and Jacobites in France, later transitioned from military to civil service, at the highest echelons in the French Council of State. They epitomized the principle noblesse oblige, in their pursuit of enlightenment, compassion, and public service.

OUTREACH PROGRAMME

January was a very busy and rewarding time for the Outreach team headed by Eddie Gahan, MGSI, with the Society's stand at the Holiday World Show in Belfast (Jan -19) and in Dublin (Jan 24-26). Over both periods the team assisted visitors in their search for family details, particularly in the case of Belfast, where not all visitors were aware of the free on line services such as Irishgenealogy.ie, the Census or Church Records that are available.

Thank you to all who assisted at either event and, in particular, to those who were at Gerry Hayden, MGSI, Cathaoirleach

GENEALOGY HELP CENTRE

Did you know that this Society operates a "Help Centre" for those researching their family history?

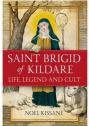

Family history need not be a lonely pilgrimage of discovery with many bumps in a very twisty road of pitfalls. Many of these research problems appear as impenetrable "brick walls" but they are rarely new problems. Many have overcome such and progressed their research with the help and advice of others.

The Society's "Help Centre" is open to the public each week where you can discuss your research problems with experienced researchers who will take you through the available resources. For times and directions please see page 4 of this newsletter.

Have you visited An Daonchartlann at the DLR Loughlinstown Leisure Centre?

The Forgotten Candidate for Patron Saint of Ireland

February 1st is a special date in the Irish ecclesiastic calendar as it is the feast day of Saint Brigid, the other patron saint of Ireland along with Saint Patrick. St. Brigid has been described as one of the "most remarkable women in Irish history" although, she has always been very elusive according to Noel Kissane in his excellent study of Brigid. Although sometimes said to have assumed many of attributes of the goddess Brigid, she was a real person that inspired a cult and was venerated throughout Ireland and overseas. Kissane's 'Saint Brigid of Kildare − Life, Legend and Cult' (ISBN: 978-1-84682-632-0: P/bk: 360pp: Price €24.95) explores the place of this saint in Irish life down through the centuries.

With Brigid and Patrick, you could say that we have a gender balance amongst our patron saints, but this may not have been the case if another candidate for such a prestigious position had been successful. Indeed, it may surprise many in Ireland to learn that the candidate was none other than King Edmund of East Anglia or more commonly known as "Edmund the Martyr". A new book published by Four Courts Press - 'Athassel Priory and the Cult of St. Edmund in Medieval Ireland' by Francis Young (ISBN: 978-1-84682-846-1: 192pp: H/bk : Price: €50.00 : Web-Price €45.00) explores how this English royal saint Edmund, king and martyr (d. 869) was venerated in Ireland from at least the twelfth century. Young looks at Athassel priory in Co. Tipperary which was the centre of a cult focussed on a miraculous statue of the saint. Although St. Edmund has been largely forgotten in the Irish consciousness, remarkably according to Young, Ireland still maintains the largest concentration of place-names in the world derived from the name Edmund.

This book argues that the veneration of St Edmund and other English saints in Ireland is essential to understanding the complex identity of the 'English of Ireland', the descendants of the Anglo-Norman invaders. This community was very different to that of the later English arrivals under the Tudors or Stuarts. Indeed, following the reformation they largely remained, along with the overwhelming majority of the Gaelic Irish, staunchly Roman Catholic and suffered accordingly through dispossession and political marginalisation in the Protestant Kingdom of Ireland.

ATHASSEL PRIORY

The history of Athassel priory, a nominally 'English' monastery patronized by the Burke dynasty, reflected the changing fortunes of Englishness in late medieval Ireland. Although apparent attempts to make St Edmund an additional patron saint of Ireland in the late Middle Ages proved unsuccessful, the spread of the name Éamon (a Gaelicized form of Edmund) in Gaelic Ireland in the fifteenth century is an enduring legacy of this unusual cult of an

Francis Young obtained his PhD from Cambridge University and is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society. He is the author of twelve books including Edmund: in search of England's lost king (2018)

DONATIONS TO THE SOCIETY

This Society is funded largely by its Membership Fees and the kind donations received from Members and friends at home and overseas.

The Society is a Registered Charity in Ireland and always considers options for fund raising and grant applications. The possibility of crowdfunding for specific projects is being considered. However, in the meantime it was decided to appeal to our Members and friends. Donations can be made on-line via the Society's website or by cheque payable to the Genea-logical Society of Ireland and sent to the General Secretary at: 11, Desmond Avenue, Dún Laoghaire, Co. Dublin, Ireland, A96 AD76

The Board would like to sincerely thank the Members and friends of the Society who have already donated.

Go Raibh Míle Maith Agaibh—Many Thanks!

WHAT DOES THE GSI DO?

The Society's main objective is to promote an awareness, appreciation and knowledge of our genealogical, heraldic and vexillological heritage at home and amongst our diaspora.

The GSI widely acclaimed as being the most active voluntary genealogical organisation in Ireland hosting Monthly Lectures each month throughout the year and eleven Morning Open Meetings from January to November each year. Everyone is welcome!

We publish a Monthly Newsletter, Annual Journal, operates an Archive and Research Centre and promote genealogy, heraldry and vexillology at events around Ireland through our very active 'Outreach Programme' offering 'Free Family History Advice' to the public, active retirement groups, ladies' clubs and all sorts of community groups.

The Society has a collaborative academic research project with the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, RCSI. The Irish DNA Atlas project was co-designed by population geneticists at the RCSI and this Society coming together to collect DNA samples from individuals with four generations of ancestry linked to specific areas across the island of Ireland. This research has been funded through an Award from Science Foundation Ireland.

We have two 'specialist branches' one for heraldry and the other for vexillology (flags) —the only organisation in Ireland promoting this aspect of our cultural heritage. We maintain a very active on-line presence promoting sustainable contacts with our diaspora.

We also campaign to obtain better public access to our genealogical heritage and records held by the State or other agencies. However, as a registered charity, none of the above would be possible without the generosity of our Members who, through their Annual Subscriptions and volunteerism, provide these services throughout the year.

The Society is governed by a Board elected by the Members at the Annual General Meeting each year-all of the Society's directors and officers are volunteers.

PLEASE help us to do more by joining the Society-new Members always welcome or by making a donation, no matter how small, to the Society. Many thanks!

News from the Board

At the monthly meeting of Board of Directors held on Thursday February 6th 2020 at Park House, Library Road, Dún Laoghaire, the General Secretary advised the Board of the receipt of a "running costs" grant from Dún Laoghaire Rathdown County Council. The grant of £1,000 is for part payment of public liability insurance and the printing of this newsletter.

The Board agreed to put back its consideration of a new Development Plan to replace the one covering 2010-2015 until the April meeting. The delay in updating the existing plan and considering new additions to same was due to the pressures of work during the latter part of last year.

The Board confirmed the appointment of Tom Conlon as a non-executive officer with responsibility for the production and editing of the Annual Journal and the production of videos of the monthly lectures. Tom stepped down from the Board on December 11th 2019.

The Board agreed to hold a Special Meeting on Thursday 20th February 2020 to decide on the Society's nomination of a candidate to contest the Seanad Éireann General Election. The deadline for receipt of applications for the nomination is Thursday February 13th 2020. Address on page 4 (top right).

The Society's accounts are currently with the auditor and the audited annual accounts will be presented to the Annual General Meeting to be held on Tuesday March 10th 2020 at the Dún Laoghaire Further Education Institute. General Secretary

MONTHLY LECTURE PROGRAMME

Tuesday Feb. 11th— 'Researching your Clan history using DNA & documentary records' by Dr. Maurice Gleeson
Ireland has a rich history of clans/septs, extending back almost 2000 years. There has been renewed interest in Clan research due to the advent of digitisation and the increasing online accessibility of ancient texts and their translations, as well as the availability of Y-DNA testing and the growth in Surname DNA Projects. This talk explores how anyone can use DNA and online texts to research their own particular Irish Clan. particular Irish Clan.

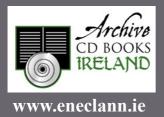

Tuesday Mar. 10th—'Genetic Landscape and History Revealed by the Irish DNA Atlas' by Dr. Edmund Gilbert, RCSI.
Dr Edmund Gilbert will be presenting an update to the Irish DNA Atlas study, a joint research project between the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland and the Genealogical Society of Ireland. He will be presenting the current status of the project, and how geneticists have used the Irish DNA Atlas as a resource to investigate the genetic ancestry of Ireland

NEW BOARD FOR 2020-2021

The Annual General Meeting of the Society will be held on Tuesday March 10th 2020 at 20.00hrs, at which, the Board's Annual Report and the Audited Accounts will be presented to the Members.

Members will elect the new Board of Directors for the coming year, including An Cathaoirleach (Chair), Leas-Chathaoirleach (Vice-Chair), General Secretary and Director of Finance. Six other directors will be elected and will receive their portfolios at the Board Meeting on Thursday April 2nd 2020.

A number of the existing Board members have indicated that they wish to step down at the AGM after many years service. Therefore, we are currently looking for volunteers to put themselves forward for election at the AGM. Hopefully, Members will come forward to help us run the Society for the coming year.

The Board meets for two hours on the first Thursday of each month, except January when it's the second Thursday. No meeting is held in August.

TRACING YOUR IRISH ANCESTORS

Précis of the January Lecture

'Townlands, Maps and Directories' by Shane Wilson, MGSI. The popular website http://SWilson.info is widely used by our membership and is recognised as a niche site for genealogists. Shane updates the site regularly and the level of detail to townlands maps and directories is very impressive. Shane started off this talk with an overview of his website, which can be overwhelming to the new user, such is the amount of data and detail contained on the site. The website is jam packed with genealogical gems and contains tools to assist and enable keen genealogist to navigate and manipulate data in a way that only professional historians can do.

Shane has devised and provides free of charge, tools to browse the census 1901 and 1911 data on a page by page basis, in addition to a tool to browse the General Registration Offices Birth, Death and Marriage records, on a sequential sheet by sheet basis, and this alone is worth the time spent on this site. The original records published on these websites were intended to be accessed on a query only basis and are aimed at a wide spectrum audience, whereas these tools supplied by Shane can assist dedicated researchers to drill down, a feature never intended in the original issue of the NAI site or the Irish Genealogy websites.

There are many townlands in Ireland and the 1851 townland index is invaluable tool to assist researchers in finding the correct one. Shane gives the user five ways of locating a townland and showed us his preferred option three which goes by the name of New Townland explorer. This is a comprehensive set of options to help locate correct townlands. We saw that there are fifty Newtown's in Ireland and thirty Ballymore's, so confusion reigns when you are tracking down a widely used townland name in search of an ancestor.

Shane pointed out the many typos found in the index namely "Lust" in North County Dublin for Lusk and "Looughshinney" for the better known Loughshinney near Skerries, also in North County Dublin. When it comes to maps there is a comprehensive number of maps particularly for the Dublin area starting with a 1610 plan of Dublin followed by Watson's almanac from 1783, through to an 1836 Baldwin and Craddock map, Thom's Directory 1863, Dublin City 1895 by Bacon and on to the more recent maps from 1935 and 1948 illustrating the changes which have occurred over time. The maps of Ireland are well covered with the inclusion of all thirty two counties from Lewis Topographical Dictionary of Ireland 1837, with beautiful illustrations of every county.

Shane gave a very good overview of directories available on his site including Peter Wilson's directory of Dublin from 1750 to about 1837, the Treble Almanack (Watson) Pettigrew and Oulton 1834 to c1837, Thom's Directory 1844 to c2013 with other larger populations centres like Cork represented by Guy's and Limerick represented by Bassets's. On an all-Ireland front, there are Slater's directory 1845 to 1894 and Pigot's Directory 1820 to 1824. Shane has developed quick references and linkages to many of the above mentioned directories. Subsequent to this talk Shane has kindly added a WordPress article to his site, displaying all of the linkages addressed in this talk. The scale of the detail presented was substantial. Therefore, Shane has agreed to give a second talk later this year. The full lecture is on https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HKZnKY5eiuc&feature=youtu.be Many thanks to Shane.

HISTORICAL FICTION—'THE TAINTED'

As we advised last month, we will be including reviews of historical fiction each month. Historical fiction as a genre is quite clearly defined as "a form of fictional narrative which reconstructs history and recreates it imaginatively". J. A. Cuddon in his 'Dictionary of Literary Terms & Literary Theory' goes on to say that 'though writing fiction, the good historical novelist researches his or her chosen period thoroughly and strives for verisimilitude" (the appearance of being true or real).

We are delighted to launch this new feature for the 'Gazette' with Cauvery Madhavan's new novel 'The Tainted' which is due out in April 2020. Our guest reviewer, June Brady, really loved the book

Brady, really loved the book and was particularly impressed by the very evident depth of research undertaken by the author. Basing her story on historical events that will be included in the State's commemoration of the Irish War of Independence, albeit, that these events happened in India during the "British Raj".

In carefully researching the actual events and crafting a fictional narrative, June Brady, was particularly touched by the author's very descriptive style and her attention to detail. The names of the military units and regiments are fictionalised and June Brady discussed this point with Cauvery Madhavan who explained that she didn't want "put words in the mouths of real people". This was important as the story develops to span several decades in the lives of the characters.

June Brady, like many Irish people, had an ancestor who served in the British Army in India. June's grandfather died at the age of 49 from a sickness acquired during his service in Cauvery Madhavan was inspired to write this historical novel by the events of June 1920 when companies of the Connaught Rangers mutinied in the Punjab, India, on hearing of British atrocities in Ireland during the War of Independence.

June Brady described 'The Tainted' as "a fabulous story" with a "beautiful ending" that brought to life a place and time that has been forgotten and, yet would have once been very familiar to Irish families with members serving in the British Army in India.

'The Tainted' can be pre-ordered from the publishers—Price Stg£9.99 at the following website www.hoperoadpublishing.com/the-tainted

"HALL'S INDEX"

The "Gazette" is Ireland's longest running monthly genealogical newsletter and it is read by thousands each month around the world. All the past issues of this newsletter and its predecessor back to 1996 have been fully indexed by the late Brendan Hall, MGSI and they are available in pdf format to read or to download free of charge on www.familyhistory.ie

Although we're not members of the National Union of Journalists (NUJ), the team at the "Gazette" always endeavour to operate in accordance with the NUJ Code of Conduct www.nuj.org.uk/about/nuj-code/ and in line with the 'National Policy Statement on Ensuring Research Integrity in Ireland' which was endorsed by the Genealogical Society of Ireland back in June 2014 soon after its launch at the Royal Irish Academy. (see the June 2014 issue at www.familyhistory.ie)
